

Our Story

The Making It Happen Now (MiHN) foundation is the merchant of inspiration. At the heart of the organisation is the conviction that each and every one of us has the potential to make a positive difference and that giving back is just as important as receiving.

From its beginnings, focussing on helping young people in Europe, MiHN has now turned its sights to international projects further afield, most recently an initiative to build to support three schools in the Gambia in Africa including a local school for deaf children. Recruiting volunteers to engage in these worthwhile projects underlines MiHN's commitment to offer valuable human resources and strategy to communities in need.

Pa is the founder of Making it Happen Now Foundation (MIHN): a charity that supports inner-city communities by empowering young people to take control of their lives.

MIHN provides a platform that helps disadvantaged communities build a solid foundation for prosperity and self-sustenance. It gives meaning, hope and a sense of purpose, and arms young men and women with essential tools to navigate through life's challenges. MIHN encourages young people to create and make the most of opportunities, and to make choices that positively impact their local community, with their own unique gifts and talents.

Our Mission

The key to all MiHN's work and support is self-sustainability; offering resources, including time, knowledge, and education (rather than just money) to facilitate projects that can stand on their own feet in the future. In this way, the work of MiHM not only has an impact on the individuals involved in the projects themselves, but on the wider communities as well.

Our mission is to help young people to develop into leaders of their societies. We believe that everybody deserves a wealthy life and living their passion and purpose. The bigger goal is to motivate and inspire them to use these leadership skills to help not only themselves but also others in their community.

We also want to empower the Gambian People to Economic Self Sufficiency by 2020! Through sustainable development, education, healthcare and agriculture.

We aim for building bridges between the communities we support and our donors, sponsors and volunteers. Basically for everyone involved creating added value. We believe we can all learn from each other in many ways and want to fully integrate this in our operations.

MIHN brings hope and wisdom to young people struggling to find their way in life. The foundation's mentors provide a sense of belongingness and acceptance, through love and understanding, particularly to those most at risk of falling into the gang culture and other negative forces that exist within our communities. The mentors are positive role models who young people can relate to and want to listen to. The foundation's programs are occasionally presided over by alumni who can champion the importance of being responsible, upstanding young citizens. MIHN has had a profound impact on many young lives.

To learn more about how you can participate in the Making It Happen Now Foundation, or to make a donation, visit us online today at: www.makingithappennow.com

